Structural Preservation Systems Acquires Delta Pacific Builders

BALTIMORE, MD (May 17, 2007) – Structural Preservation Systems – a Baltimore-based specialty-contracting firm that delivers services, systems and technologies that build, repair, protect, strengthen and reinforce concrete, steel, masonry, timber and soils – has acquired Delta Pacific Builders, Inc.

Headquartered in Huntington Beach, California, Delta Pacific Builders is a full-service concrete restoration, coating and lining company that also offers a variety of specialty floor and wall systems. For more than 40 years, the firm has provided services and products for commercial, industrial and residential projects.

“Delta Pacific Builders has a great reputation in the industry, excellent people and strong customer relationships,” said Peter Emmons, Chief Executive Officer of Structural Preservation Systems. “The acquisition of Delta Pacific Builders is in line with our continued growth plans and gives us a strong presence on the West Coast.”

Jim Andrews, President and Owner of Delta Pacific Builders, will continue in a key leadership role with the company. “Structural Preservation Systems has consistently been a leader in the industry. Their team environment and company culture are a great fit with Delta Pacific,” Andrews said. “Becoming part of the Structural family will provide more opportunities for our people and will allow us to continue to better meet the needs of our customers with more diverse service and product offerings.”

Terms of the acquisition were not disclosed.

Delta Pacific Builders, Inc. is a founding member of the National Construction Technologies Group, Envirochem Technologies and the Los Angeles/Orange County Chapter of the International Concrete Repair Institute. The firm also is an active member of the American Concrete Institute; the Sealants, Waterproofing & Repair Institute; and the Structural Engineering Association of Southern California.
